eVetting FAQ:

Where does the applicant find the link to apply for vetting online?

The applicant must manually complete and forward the Vetting Invitation Form to Irish Water Safety and provide proof of identity. Irish Water Safety confirms proof of identity and sends the applicant an email with a link attached inviting him/her to complete the vetting application online.

What details must the applicant provide on the Invitation Form?

They must provide their forename(s), surname, date of birth, Email address, contact number, job role, current address and sign and date the Invitation Form.

How does the applicant obtain an Invitation Form?

Irish Water Safety provides the Invitation Form to the applicant.

How long is the link available to the applicant after they receive the Email with the link from Irish Water Safety?

The link will expire after 30 days. The applicant will then have to re-apply to Irish Water Safety to resend the link.

Is a reminder Email sent to the applicant prior to the link expiring?

Yes. A reminder Email is sent after 21 days if no reply has been received from the applicant.

When the applicant has completed the application form online, does it go directly to the National Vetting Bureau?

No. The application goes to Irish Water Safety. They will review the application and submit it to the National Vetting Bureau.

Can an applicant check the progress of their vetting application?

Yes. The applicant may click on the link received in the original Email from Irish Water Safety. From here, they can go to the Track Application section to see the status of their application.

Is the vetting Disclosure issued by the National Vetting Bureau to the applicant or Irish Water Safety?

The vetting disclosure is issued to Irish Water Safety. Irish Water Safety, in accordance with the National Vetting Bureau Act, shall, as soon as practicable, make available a copy of the vetting disclosure to the applicant.

If an applicant hasn't an Email address and Irish Water Safety have signed up for e-Vetting, what do they do?

The applicant may complete a paper application form and send it to the Irish Water Safety who will enter the details onto the e-Vetting website and submit to the National Vetting Bureau.

How to clear cache and cookies

If you're seeing problems in how the e-Vetting portal is displaying in your browser; it may be necessary to clear your cache and cookies.

Review and follow the instructions provided by your browser:

- Google Chrome
- Windows Internet Explorer
- Mozilla Firefox
- Apple Safari

Details and alternatives

Effect of clearing cache and cookies: Keep in mind that clearing your cache and cookies erases your settings for websites. Here are some examples:

- •If you opted to have your browser remember your username and password, it will be cleared from your browser's memory when you clear cache and cookies.
- •The e-Vetting portal might load a little slower because all of the images and content pieces have to be loaded from scratch.

Recommended first step: If you're seeing problems in how web pages are displayed in your browser, we suggest first using your browser's incognito or private browsing mode to see if the problem you're seeing is caused by something other than cache or cookies.
